Native American Services Corp. is a 51% Native American Owned, 8(a) and HUBzone certified company, located in Northern Idaho's Silver Valley. The company was founded in 1998 by Dennis Rusty Sheppard and branded as Environmental Indian Construction (EIC). The first contract awarded to the company was the demolition of the NCO club at Malmstrom Air Force Base. In 2002, current majority owner and CEO Matthew D. James purchased controlling interest in the small company and changed the name from EIC to Native American Services Corp (NASCO).
